

What stops you from being physically active?

Trying to be more physically active can be hard for many people. You are not alone!

You may face problems such as:

- no time,
- being tired, and
- having other priorities.

The boxes below lists common problems that stop us from being more active and offers tips to help you work on these problems.

Problem

Ways to work on the problem

“I am just not motivated.”

- Make the decision to be active.
- Focus on doing the activity, rather than the results.
- Choose something fun.
- Focus on the short-term benefits, such as sleeping better and having more energy.

“I have no time.”

- Be active for 10 minutes, three times each day.
- Make activity dates with yourself and keep them.
- Take “active breaks” at work.
- Walk or bike to work, and when doing errands.

This handout for adults will help you think about:

- what is stopping you from being more physically active and
- how to work on these problems.

Ways to work on the problem

“Poor weather.”

- Plan ahead! Be ready to be active in any weather.
- Focus on the fresh air and being outside.
- Make a list of activities you will do in good weather and bad weather.
- When it’s hot, bring water, wear a hat and find shade.
- When it’s cold, dress in layers, and wear gloves and a warm hat.

“I feel tired and have no energy.”

- Be active when you have the most energy, such as doing a morning or lunch-hour activity if you are too tired in the evening.
- Remind yourself that you will have more energy after your activity.
- Plan to be active with other people.

“I feel uncomfortable.”

- “Physical activity” can be anything you like to do. It is not only about “exercise” or “working out.”
- Choose activities that are comfortable for you, such as walking.
- Be active with others who you feel comfortable with (family and friends).
- Don’t compare yourself to others.

“I have no one to be active with.”

- Join an exercise class, a group or club.
- Make new friends who are already active.
- Invite friends to be active with you.
- Join a walking group at work, or in your community.
